Personal blog

" Lemon Blog " is a personal blog witch I created this year because I wanted to learn new things by permanent update a page . It's a page with React.js as main framework , hosted on a free service named CloudFlare .
It was my first site hosted , and a true daily challenge . Hardest part for me was figuring out how to link github and CloudFlare and getting a free domain for it or a paid one . But once I figured it the website only grew up until today and will grow more in future .
Some skills used are : HTML5 ,Javascript , CSS3 , React.js ,
I update this daily with my projects when they are done , taking permanent feedback from my friends .

Facebook clone - (only frontend until now)

I tried to challenge myself and build a project like Facebook . Why ? simply because Facebook build React.js and I rly like React.js concepts .
This project is done with React.js mainly and I decided to don't use Sass for CSS because I think if the code is more nested is harder to understand . As an alternative I found "Bem convention " , it helped me a lot , seeing thinks easily and try a new site structure .
I also used a lot of Material-Ui for buttons and icons and also deploy it with cloudFlare .
I'm still working on this project to add some more functionality and learn more React by doing it .
